NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS.—Added precautions will be taken this year by the State Department of Health to assure proper sanitation at tourist camps throughout Ohio, it was announced by Dr. Walter H. Hartung, state director of health. A closer and more detailed inspection of the camps will be made before permits to operate are issued, Dr. Hartung said, because it is reported that some camps last year did not comply fully with the regulations, which involved danger to the health of patrons and to persons in the community. The department has ordered the operators of all camps to put their camps in sanitary condition for the coming season. In accordance with a ruling the inspection of a camp must be made by the district health commissioner before a new permit is granted.

A warning was issued by Secretary of State George S. Myers, in regard to the issuance of sample ballots and other campaign literature. Secretary Myers pointed out that the law of Ohio provides that all campaign literature advocating the nomination or election of any person or persons shall have plainly printed on it the name of the person or committee sponsoring the distribution of such publicity matter. "If a sample ballot is printed indicating preferences for any candidate," Secretary Myers asserted, "it comes under the same provision of the law and must carry the name and address of the sponsor."

Civil service examinations for twenty positions in the state's service will be conducted in four key cities: Columbus, Toledo, Cincinnati and Cleveland—on May 5, 6 and 7, according to an announcement by the State Civil Service Commission. The positions for which tests will be held are: Actuary, Industrial Commission; assistant to the registrar, Ohio State university; engineer and assistant engineer, Department of Highways; attorney-examiner and examiner, Division of Securities; chemist and billing room supervisor, Department of Liquor Control; deputy warden, Ohio State penitentiary; examiner, Division of Insurance; field ecologist, Division of Conservation; limnologist, Department of Agriculture; parole officer; graphotype machine operator; multi-lith machine operator, physician, State hospital; radio operator, Ohio Highway patrol; departmental stenographer; typist, Ohio university; and superintendent, Ohio Reformatory for Women. Detailed information about the examinations may be obtained by writing to the State Civil Service Commission.

A $1,611,875 check, representing the federal government's initial participation under the social security program in Ohio's old age pension system, has been received by State Treasurer Harry S. Day. The check was for one-half of the pensions paid in Ohio during February and March, Henry J. Berrold, chief of the Division of Aid for the Aged, said. Under the present law there are 90,000 aged men and women receiving pensions and they will be increased to approximately 110,000 as a result of the approval by the General Assembly of additional old age measures which provide six major amendments to conform with federal social security legislation, Mr. Berrold asserted. He pointed out that the government will assume up to one-half of the burden of existing and future payments by reimbursing the state in an amount not to exceed one-half of the total sum necessary to pay certified awards.

A record enrollment for the summer quarter at Ohio State university was forecast by university officials. The quarter will be divided into two terms, the first starting June 22 and ending July 29 and the second starting July 30 and ending September 4. Graduate work will be particularly stressed for the benefit of Ohio teachers, and the usual courses for undergraduates will be conducted. More than 200 resident members of the faculty will be on duty. The university's College of Law for the second term in history will have a summer term, according to Dean H. W. Arant.

THE LONG AGO By F. M. FOSTER New York City

We just can't believe it! Believe what? That 59 years before the undersigned was born there was not a white man living in what is now Cedarville Township. But believe it or not, it is even so. Another thing. Just sit down and try to think of Cedarville as woods, and woods and more woods for no end of miles north, south, east and west. We just can't visualize so much woods. It required men of strong character and determination to build a bit of a cabin in such a wilderness of trees, and vision farms in open country. But in less than 50 years the thing was done. Big farms with fine houses and barns were all over the Township, and outside of it, and equipped with machinery. My father and uncle had the first mowing machine. This was in the 50's. It was a four-horse clumsy affair, cutting a swath about 7 feet. Finally, it just wouldn't work. The first reaper required a man to ride and rake off the wheat in steeple bundles. It was no lazy man's job.

The statement is ventured that few settlements can show such record as Cedarville township and contiguous territory. Such results can be attributed to two things. First, strong men and women. Failure was not in their vocabulary. Second, Practically the whole township and region was settled by thorough-going Christian people—such as the Townsleys, the Barbers, the Kyles, the Jacksons, the McMillans and such like; people who went to Church in rain and snow as well as when the trees were in blossom. They brought the House of God with them and built it of logs somewhere in the woods, as were their cabins. And they loved when they followed the trails to worship. Let the present generation recall with gratitude that such fine devotion to God is what made Cedarville.

The Town was laid out in streets in 1816—a town in the woods of 1500 inhabitants—ten or twelve there then; the rest on time. But look at its setting—scarcely an acre is town as well as out, without several very large trees. What could be done with them? The sawmill solved the problem. The first one was built by Jesse Newport, 1811, four years before the Town was laid out. (We are indebted for these dates to that excellent Centennial Souvenir, 1816-1916, by Rev. H. Parks Jackson, Mrs. Lucy Barber, R. Cecil Barnes, Clarke Nagley, and Prof. F. A. Jurkat. Copies should be in every family for the generations to come.) Mr. Newport also built the dam for water-power. The dam provided a beautiful sheet of water reaching back to where the two creeks meet. Everybody admired that sheet of water and was sorry when, probably in the 90's, the dam let go.

So far as the undersigned knows, the original bridge was in use until in the 60's when it was replaced by an arch. The trusses in the old bridge were boarded and the roadway about 15 feet wide, with no part laid off for walking. How the street running north and south was called Main street, instead of the first street laid out—Chillicothe—is not known to the writer. Possibly the wiser ones saw it was to become the principal street.

The sawmill built by Newport was one of four along Massie's Creek in the two miles down; one at Ervin's four mill; another on Uncle John Williamson's farm, but abandoned; the fourth the Tarbox mill. The mill near Main street, was in later days known as the Barber saw mill—the grandfather of the accomplished Editor of the Cedarville Herald. No wonder he is a good writer and editor for he comes of good stock on both sides of the house.

At the south end of Main street, at the forks of the road, about 45 rods from the railroad, was the Booth's saw mill. It was a steam mill with the saw on the second story. The logs were drawn up on an incline with the track running back to the far end of the yard. It was no small matter to build that mill for it was large. The log yard was made of probably fifty or more logs butting up to the log-carriage and about a foot apart and flush with the top of the carriage. All these five mills were at one time driving ahead at top speed, with the lumber going into houses and barns and fences and furniture and wagons and harrows and plows, etc. Also much timber was split into rails for fences. It was interesting to see a rail-splitter begin on a log, three feet through, with his iron wedges, gluts and mail. The roads to the sawmills led back to the ax-man and the cross-cut saw. They were sturdy men.

So far, we have been leading up to "What is a Stump-Shot?" Again step back about 70 years. Saw mill men, at least in our parts, knew nothing.

Auto Wrecked; One Injured

Mrs. J. H. Andrew sustained injury to her back last Saturday when the automobile in which she was riding, with her husband driving, was hit by an oncoming car.

The Andrews reside on the Columbus Pike and the accident happened when they turned to enter the driveway, the driver of the car following not seeing the warning signal for a left-hand turn. The Andrew car was demolished while Mr. Andrew escaped injury. Outside of a bent fender there was no damage to the other car.

Mrs. Andrew is reported as recovering from her injury.

A large crowd of people gathered at the railroad Wednesday morning to get a glance of the new steam locomotive put in use by the Pennsylvania. The train did not stop and it was only a glance at best for the crowd as the fast express thundered by.

Slogan Contest

The following from "The Salt Lake Tribune," Salt Lake City, Utah, issue of April 16, will be of interest to many in Cedarville.

Marion S. Hostetter, minister of Presbyterian church at Green River, Utah, was presented with an oil painting by Paul Coyne, valued at $500, as first prize for his slogan: "A car on the road beats two in the ditch." The presentation was made by Gov. Blood, of Utah, at a banquet given to about 120 contestants and guests in Capital of Utah.

Marion's church is about 100 miles from Salt Lake City. Five thousand slogans were submitted from all over the state. Judges gave fourth place to the slogan, "A sleepy driver never wakes up," but switched to another when they found it was by the same person who submitted the first. It is hard to stop a C. C. man.

Marion visited the Mormon temple and other important sites in the capital city of his adopted state. Upon his return home the prize was displayed for a ten-day period. The artist who painted it helped paint the murals in the state capital.

Congratulations M. H. S., C. C., '32.

The Civic Committees from the various ladies' clubs urge all to keep their yards in attractive condition by the use of flowers and shrubs. Merchants can also aid in various ways. It is planned to have flower boxes on the Main street bridge and elsewhere. Nothing gives a town more attractiveness than well kept lawns with flowers.

From a health standpoint public officials should start a drive for a clean-up of alleys and backyards. Conditions in some places are beyond description. The time to act is now before the hot weather sets in.

Smalley Fined For Theft; $50 and Costs

Harley Smalley, who resides on the Columbus Pike west of town lifted a tire, tube, automobile rim and battery from a truck at the Cummings Garage, Tuesday night. Mayor Little placed a fine of $50 and costs but reduced it to $25 upon payment, the reduction to stand on good behavior. Being a WPA worker at Jamestown, Marshal McLean collected $16.95 out of his pay. The balance must be paid out of his next government check.

NEED AND COST TO THE TAXPAYER OF THE SCHOOL BOND ISSUE

At a meeting of the patrons of the Cedarville Schools, called by the Board of Education on April 21, it was voted by those present that a committee prepare facts as to the need and cost of the proposed building and these facts to be published in the Cedarville Herald.

Why This Proposed Building is Needed

1. Present quarters too small to carry on Agriculture, Manual Training, and Mechanical Drawing classes. No rooms in the present building can meet the requirements for Agriculture classes.
2. A new building will release the present Farm Shop and Manual Training room for other necessary uses.
3. Present quarters were approved temporarily by the State Department of Education until the Vocational Agriculture Courses were completely organized.
4. Sixty farm boys are now enrolled in Vocational Agriculture.
5. Twenty boys and girls are taking Mechanical Drawing.
6. Manual Training is now limited to 10 boys due to lack of room and equipment. Additional boys desiring this work cannot be admitted.
7. Two small rooms are now rented of Cedarville College costing $240 per year for the Agriculture and Mechanical Drawing classes.
8. Vocational Home Economics has been offered to the girls for several years. Our boys should have the same opportunities.

Cost to the Taxpayer

1. Amount of the bond issue is $5,500. This will be used for the purchase of material and equipment.
2. The bonds will run for 10 years.
3. The rate will be 35-300 (.85) of a mill.
4. The annual cost to the taxpayer will be only 35 cents per $1000 valuation.
5. Bonds on the present building will expire in 1941.
6. Labor is free—furnished by PWA. This is probably the last opportunity to secure a government project.
7. The brick in the old Cory school building will be used in the construction to reduce the cost.

If your property is listed at $5,000 your taxes will be only $1.75 a year additional; if $10,000 you will pay only $3.50 per year more than you are now paying. Is a new vocational building in your community worth this small additional cost in taxes to you? Cedarville being one of the best Agricultural Communities in the state certainly merits this specialized course in the training of our boys and girls in vocational courses.

WE URGE YOU TO GO TO THE POLLS ON MAY 12 AND GIVE THIS MATTER YOUR CAREFUL CONSIDERATION.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Mr. R. W. MacGregor was called to Orleans, Mass., Wednesday owing to the critical illness of his mother.

Messrs. W. S. Hopping and W. A. Turnbull and their wives enjoyed a fishing excursion at Indian Lake, Thursday.

HOLLOW MOCKERY IN NAME OF JEFFERSON

When several hundred so-called Democrats gathered in New York City, last Friday evening, supposedly to give honor in the name of Thomas Jefferson, whose name and memory have for years had a prominent place in American history, there was staged the most outstanding piece of hollow mockery that has yet come before the people since the dawn of what is known as the New Deal. What was said before this gathering and the demonstration that followed, was as far from representing political or economic views of Jefferson as is the distance between the North and South poles. The gathering was not truly Democratic for in the main it represented the scores of five to ten thousand dollar New Dealers on the government payroll.

Reports in the press and by radio indicate that the meeting was noted more for its Socialistic and Communist tendency than that of true Jefferson Democracy. We know of no place in the history of Democratic gatherings where the term "Democrat" was so seldom mentioned, a thing that has since been mentioned and commented upon by the Democratic press of the nation that has not yet substituted European thought as expressed by Roosevelt for theories and policies laid down by Jefferson. Many leading Democrats have commented upon the New Deal under Roosevelt as being anything else than Democratic and today they have but to re-read or refer to the last public utterance of Roosevelt. It speaks for itself.

When the President of the United States advocates that every boy and girl 18 years and under should be kept in school and by law denied the opportunity of employment at any time under that age, and each man and woman 60 years old should be denied employment by law and that labor between the ages of 18 and 60 be compelled to carry the burden, you have the theory of the Russian Communists.

No president in the history of America has ever advocated forcing young boys and girls on the streets, many of them that could be of financial assistance to their parents. To force a man at 60 from industry would be but making thousands of these self-supported citizens wards of the government, compelled to reduce their standard of living to what a small dole would provide.

What was the re-action of the Roosevelt speech? All you have to do is to read the market pages. Stocks and bonds dropped many points over night. Live stock markets took a big tumble along with grain. Throughout the week all stocks have dropped to new lows for the year.

MAN NEEDS BUT LITTLE

Over-estimating the conditions essential to a happy and effective life is one of the prime causes of the sense of failure. It takes much less to make one happy than we imagine. Some verifier has put it thus:

"If there's no sun, I still may have the moon;
If there's no moon, the stars my needs suffice;
If starless, there's my trusty evening lamp;
Or lampless, then my little tallow dip.
And if that fails, I still may seek my couch,
And sleep and dream there's light again!"

What this philosopher-poet is saying is simply that, if life deprives of this, and bars us out of that, and forces us to one new arrangement after another, there are still all the materials of a rich and happy life about us, if we will only think.

Life in the average village is something the big city sophisticates despise. Yet in every village are people who have accepted their place, and have turned to the cultivation of interests and affections right where they were, and have found peace.

We all know men and women who have been denied financial success and independence, but who plumbed the depths of mind and spirit, and have gained a wealth which money cannot give, nor poverty take away.

No, don't over-estimate the conditions essential to successful and happy living. It takes much less than one supposes to make a life. Remember what the late W. K. Vanderbilt once said, he who had everything—"My life was never destined to be happy; I had nothing to seek for nor strive after."

The Government is spending $6,500,000 on a housing project, who apartment houses can be rented to the class of people that usually reside in all but abandoned houses. There will be hot and cold water, electricity, flowers, etc. A citizen of that city relates an interesting event when government agents forced tenants out of that some 500 houses covering sixteen squares could be demolished. One tenant resisted leaving and he was told he would have a chance to move into one of the modern apartments where there was to be no backyards. He wanted to know what he would do with his goat, three ducks and two dogs if there was no backyard. The agent informed him no such animals would be permitted but this was more than the tenant could stand when he said: "I wouldn't trade my goat for two Roosevelt's."

Republicans are a bit puzzled over the trend of the situation in Ohio just at primary time. Leaders under the Ohio law can shut out any proposed candidate if it does not meet their wishes. This year they hatched up what is known as a "favorite son" plan, all that was necessary was someone who would act as a dummy, get elected and stand as trading stock at the National Convention. Robert L. Taft, Cincinnati, a cog in the Hamilton county machine, was willing to carry the trade-in tag, and announced supposedly in behalf of Gov. London, Kansas. In recent weeks Taft seldom mentions Lenora, but gives out interviews that he himself is an active candidate for president. Meantime the average citizen is non-plussed, not knowing what it is all about, and becomes indifferent.

Cincinnati is in the midst of a hot fight against the preferential method of balloting for city commissioners. Even the campaign for the presidential candidates takes second place. The Republican machine in that city is making a last desperate effort to get control of city patronage as well as contracts. When the commission form of government was adopted it upset the gang that had been robbing the taxpayers for years. This week the Charter group favoring the present form of voting received the support of the Catholics when a letter to that effect will be read in each of the churches. The Taft family is divided on the preferential ballot method, Robert L. standing by the Republican organization, and his brother, Charles, is campaigning for the Charter method.

It is remarkable the number of leading Democrats that are getting in the clear and backing away from the Roosevelt New Deal. Of the big shots none in Ohio is greater than Newton D. Baker, Cleveland, who has resigned as chairman of the Democratic Committee in Cuyahoga county an honor he has held for twenty years. Baker still remains a Democrat but dislikes the New Deal and resigns rather than sponsor Roosevelt for another term. John K. Raskob, former angel of the Democratic party, who donated great sums, and loaned the party sums into the hundred of thousands prefers Jeffersonian Democracy rather than Roosevelt Communism. Now that he keeps his change in his pocket Roosevelt pot-shots all Democrats that do not agree with him as long as Roosevelt could spend Raskob and DuPont money they were real fellows. Now they are enemies of the Republic.

In Roosevelt's recent Communist bally-hoo in New York City he attempted to tie the hands of the farmer with the union laborer, who has been complaining of the high cost of living under the New Deal. Roosevelt said the more the government paid the farmer the more the farmer would have to pay for ninety per cent of the clothing made on Eighth avenue, that is worn in the country. This would lead to higher wages for union clothing workers. With one hand Roosevelt hands the farmer a dole and with the other takes it away, leaving him to get his tax and interest money the best way he can. It's a great game of deception.

The labor situation in many manufacturing centers has been very disturbing, all due to the policy of the Roosevelt administration. Hundreds of plants over the country are closed down due to strikes. Twenty-five union workers in a canvas glove plant in Coshocton, O., have with the aid of out-of-town strike leaders, succeeded in keeping 150 other employees from working for more than a month. Here is a great opportunity for towns such as this to get some of these smaller industries. Coshocton city and county officials have failed to give the company or employees willing to work any protection. If such a plant were located in Cedarville, imagine the possibility of even twenty-five employees being able to keep a plant closed because some Russian Red labor leader so ordered. The Coshocton glove company should be given an invitation to locate here.

It can still be done but it ISN'T NECESSARY

For many years primitive men cooked their meals over an open fire. You could do the same today, but it isn't necessary. Open fires and other old-fashioned methods of cooking and heating have now given way to Natural Gas. Burned in modern appliances, scientifically designed, Natural Gas provides the cleanest, safest, most convenient and dependable method of cooking, baking, and heating water or homes. And it supplies this heat at a cost so low that two-thirds of the people in the United States have made it part of their daily lives.

ing of the circular saw which walks right through a log; or the band saw which makes the circular look lary. The saw used was almost like a cross-cut, excepting it was straight, and it cut on the down stroke only. It was bolted to a frame which machinery moved up and down. The log rested at each end on shoulders, with the saw-end one cut in for the sawblade to back in. A trip stopped the saw about four-inches of the far shoulder or it would saw into iron. The uncut part held the log in shape until turned to cut into board widths. Three board widths would break off sometimes 2 or 3 or 4 boards together. The builder would set up these tied-together boards to dry out. These ends would dry with astonishing ability to hold tight and would split off with a crack like a pistol shot. The end holding the 2, 3, or 4 boards together would be sawed off and the boards would fall apart. Building a house or barn or fence there would be many of these ends lying about. Should a carpenter want one he would call to some little fellow—"Bring me a stump shot!"

The lack of saw-timber stopped all Cedarville saws and the Stump-Shot with the up and down saw is gone forever.

The present generation does not know what it has missed.
